An overview of the new presentation of SARs for users of SAR data when they have been submitted through the new SAR Portal

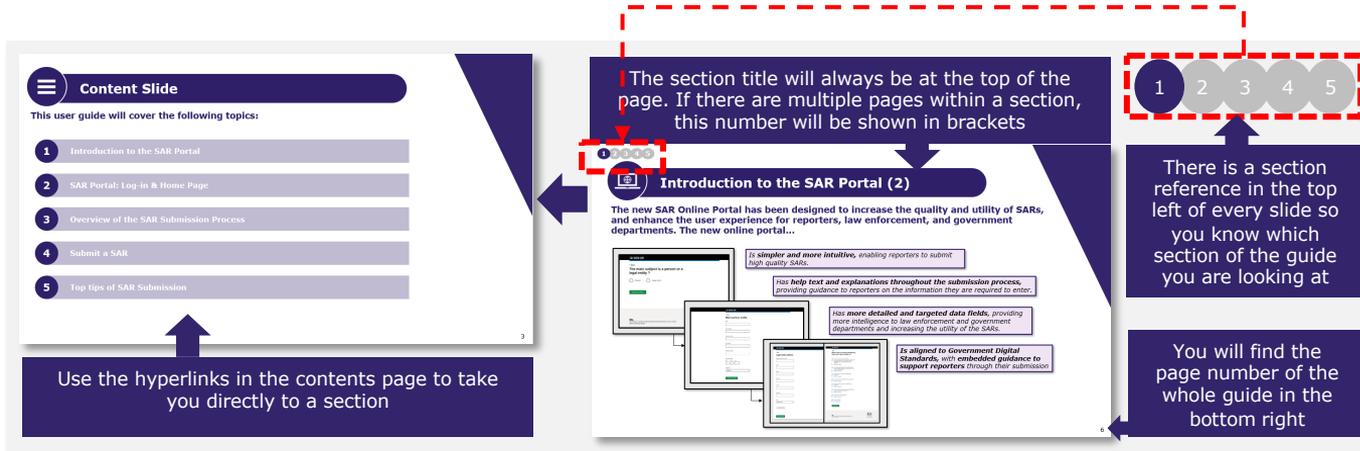

Using this Guide

This guide will provide users of SAR data with an overview of the enhanced structure of SARs for all SARs that have been submitted through the new Portal. It includes new fields to enhance the analysis and exploitation of SAR data.

The guide will provide you with:

- A summary of the key changes in the presentation of SAR data
- A description of the new fields

Below is an overview of how to use the main features in this guide.

Content Slide

This user guide will cover the topics below. Each section is a hyperlink so if you click on it you will go straight to that section.

Key Changes on the SAR (1)

There are 4 key changes to the way SAR data will appear if it is submitted using the new SAR Portal. These are outlined below.

1 Location of New Fields

Approximately 200 new fields have been added into the 'old' data structure.

These new fields can be found besides 'Notes' under the following sections:

- Main Subject – Suspect
- Transaction

New fields are also seen under section:

- Reason For Suspicion

Occupation:	Businessman	Employer:	Self Employed
Notes:	[PARTY IS ALIAS OF MAIN PARTY] [PARTY FORMER NAME] Reginald DWIGHT [PARTY MIDD NAME 2] Thomas [PARTY MIDD NAME 3] Richard [PARTY MIDD NAME 4] Harold

2 Formatting of New Fields

All new field labels are enclosed in [] brackets.

Note these new fields will only be shown if the Reporter fills it with a value at the time of submission.

Key Changes on the SAR (2)

There are 4 key changes to the way SAR data will appear if it is submitted using the new SAR Portal. These are outlined below.

3 Improved Data Accuracy

The new SAR Online Portal now performs immediate data validation checks. This means there is less room for Reporters to make errors as they fill in the report.

Numbers and references such as

- NHS number
- Bank Account number
- Sort Code

have a lower risk of being inaccurate as the system performs a check to ensure they are in the correct format.
